

Born in Magog, Quebec, Jenny grew up in the Eastern Townships and received her early education there and in Montreal. She attended the University of Ottawa where she received her bachelor's degree in English Literature and worked for a time in the Foreign Service in Ottawa. After marriage, Jenny and her husband Terry moved to Rossland, BC, where they raised three children: Joel, Thea and Simon. She graduated in 1991 from UBC with a B.Sc. (Rehab Medicine--Physiotherapy) as Class President. Over the years, she has worked at a number of hospitals in BC and MB due to her husband's work including ten years at Health Sciences Centre. Jenny has worked in virtually every area of physiotherapy (cardio-respiratory, surgery, neuro, orthopaedics, burns) but has spent much of her time in out-patient orthopaedics and is qualified in acupuncture and manual therapy. She was sole owner of Pine Falls Physiotherapy for a number of years and for the last three years has worked part-time at Pine Falls Hospital and her private clinic, Physio at the Beach (near Grand Beach). She spends a few months every winter in North Vancouver near her adult children and grandchildren. Jenny enjoys walks in the woods near her home, good literature, gardening, crosswords, tai chi and time with her family and faith community.
